Research solution system.

Meditrial's core mission is to pursue excellence in the management of clinical trials while being fully responsive to our customers' needs.

We provide meaningful interpretations of what needs to be done and why. Our advice reflects both regulatory and industry perspectives.

Our constant endeavour is to operate in compliance with international scientific, ethical and regulatory requirements.

Efficiency starts with expertise.

Bringing cutting edge therapies to market, structuring successful clinical trials, navigating regulatory issues - all can be complicated, even frustrating challenges. The last thing you need is a CRO that adds to the complexity, confusion, and busywork. At Meditrial, we believe our role is to minimize complexity.

We offer expertise in clinical trials, data management, regulatory compliance, quality control, and training, all within a streamlined model that seeks to eliminate wasted time and resources.

We are organized to promote agility and transparency, reject bureaucracy, and ensure the utmost accessibility and responsiveness.

More trial, less error.

Meditrial recognises the needs of the medical industry to reduce development costs while at the same time significantly shortening time to market and driving clinical adoption of new and more effective therapies.

These are the strategic goals to which our actions are aligned.

Our organization is designed to facilitate approval, training, recruitment of patients in multicenter, multinational phase I-IV trials, enabling rapid start and successful study completion.

High quality of work.
Low quantity of busywork.

Meditrial streamlines and accelerates clinical trial processes from study design to database lock.

We manage studies with pragmatism to meet client timelines and achieve compliance with regulatory requirements.

Our competitors talk about efficiency - we "walk the walk" by making our processes and communications simpler.

We focus on ways to make Meditrial more efficient than competitors, analyzing every process to discover ways to "trim the fat" without ever sacrificing quality.

Cutting edge research doesn't have to be so painful.

The secret behind the success of every project is talented human resources.

Meditrial integrates a team of medical doctors, clinical professionals, engineers and regulatory specialists who add value to the product development chain of our customers.

Our team ensures a seamless support to each clinical program, with the focus, flexibility and energy that every customer wants and every project deserves.

Accessible.
Responsive.
Transparent.
